your look

Q How can I get a more modern, undone style with my curling iron? Whenever I use it, the effect is a little too precious.

A Start with day-old hair; it holds its shape better. Set the iron on medium-low and begin wrapping 2 inches down from the roots, leaving the ends free, says L.A. stylist Marcus Francis, who works with Hilary Duff. Afterward, don't brush. Just shake it out and finger-comb for a chunky, textured wave.

Got Got Girl hair extensions,

Q Clip-in extensions always end up looking fake on me. Is there a trick to them?

A Hair extensions can look natural, and quite good, if they're done correctly, says N.Y.C. hairstylist Kristina Barricelli of Gemini 14, who has done extensions for Kristin Chenoweth and Miley Cyrus. For best results, take your cues from the color and texture of your hair. If you want length, match the extension color to the typically darker bottom layers; for fullness, choose extensions that match your top layers. When styling, texturize your real hair first before attaching the clip-in: Use a light weight hairspray for thin hair and a frizz serum for thick.

Q Can you recommend a great organic shampoo?

A While it's hard to find hair washes that are completely organic (Aubrey's shampoo is 78 percent), this company's line avoids what the Environmental Working Group calls ingredients of concern—synthetic fragrances, parabens, PEG, cetareth, polyethylene, and DMDM hydration. Also, unlike many green shampoos, it produces a lush lather that left our hair feeling clean and silky—not dry and funky smelling.
